Ford recalls certain KA and Figo passenger vehicles

 AUGUST 15, 2019

Ford Ireland is carrying out a voluntary recall of certain KA and Figo passenger vehicles.

There is a risk of the un-fused Battery Monitoring System (BMS) wire chafing, as a result of an incorrectly routed wire to the vehicles battery. If the wire is routed incorrectly, this could lead to a pinch condition under the battery metal bracket, which may lead to a short circuit, which could result in a fire.

The vehicles in question were manufactured between 08/09/2017 and 15/05/2019.

This recall affects 243 vehicles in the Republic of Ireland.

What to do:

Ford Ireland will write to owners of affected vehicles in relation to this recall and advise of further steps.
